XML Press is Moving

XML Press is moving to Southern California. We decided it was time for a change, so we loaded up the truck and moved to SoCal. We're still in transit, so if it takes a little longer for us to respond to a phone call or email, please be assured that we will get back to you as soon as possible. By mid-February we should be fully settled in and running at full speed.

Our phone number, web address, and email addresses will stay the same.

Intelligent Content 2011

Intelligent Content 2011 is coming up in February (16th - 18th). It's a great conference with excellent speakers in a great location (who doesn't want to be in Palm Springs in February?). Several XML Press authors and "friends of XML Press" will be there.

Details at: <http://www.rockley.com/IC2011>

Conference for Software User Assistance 2011

WritersUA is sponsoring another great conference, the Conference for Software User Assistance. This year it's in Long Beach, California, March 13th to 16th.

Char James-Tanny, co-author of the forthcoming book, Communicating with Everyone will give a talk titled, "60 Minutes to an HTML5 Web Page." This will be a hands-on session from an expert in HTML 5.

Alan Porter Nominated for Social Media Award

Alan Porter, author of WIKI: Grow Your Own for Fun and Profit, currently available from XML Press, and The Content Pool, scheduled for publication later this year, has been nominated for a second straight year for recognition in the Austin Statesman Texas Social Media Awards. These Awards recognize Texans who are leaders in social media.

Congratulations to Alan for his nomination. Winners are selected in part based on comments from the community. You can post a comment at the link below:
